

Interested in making a difference to your local NHS?

Join a Patient Participation Group!

Many GP practices in Wolverhampton have Patient Participation Groups (PPGs) They are formed by patients of local GP practices to have a say on not only how the practice is run, but get involved with work that affects the future of NHS services right across the city.

We're looking for members who represent the diverse community of our city. Being a member of a PPG will require a little of your time but will mean you can help the NHS to improve for you, your family, friends and residents of the city.

What if my practice doesn't have one?

If your practice doesn't have a PPG, why not help it to set one up? PPGs can operate in a range of different ways – virtually or by meeting face-to-face, depending on the wishes of its members.

The future of the health service is important to us all. Support your local NHS and help improve that way that the health service involves local people. Speak to the practice manager today!
